WASHINGTON (AP)

After four days of intensive bargaining, negotiators in a gunpowder plant strike have reached a tentative settlement that the administration hopes will restore some dwindling ammunition supplies for Viet Nam. The rebuilding of critical gunpowder stocks could resume after the New Year's weekend if the 4,200 strikers at the Olin Mathieson plant in East Alton, Ill., approve the agreement reached here Thursday night. Bargaining for the month-long strike was switched to Washington Monday at the request of the Federal Mediation Service.

Chief Federal Mediator William E. Simkin said the tentative agreement was communicated to the White House and Pentagon and "everybody in the administration is gratified at this step."

The Illinois plant is the sole manufacturer of a special gunpowder used in some rifle bullets. (Continued On Page Seven)

Newspaper Folds;
Lost 2 Officers

JOLIET, Ill. (AP)—A weekly newspaper which lost two officers reportedly in reprisal for its editorial attacks on crime attacks and corruption in Will County has folded after 39 years of publication.

The board of directors of the Spectator issued the statement Thursday: "We are publishing our last issue today." Publisher William Johnson said the paper, which had a gross circulation of 32,000, could not meet rising operating costs.

The Spectator conducted vigorous campaigns against gambling and took sides in many bitter political fights under the leadership of Miss Amelia J. (Molly) Zelko, business manager and part owner, and William B. McCabe, a major stockholder a former Will County state's attorney.

Miss Zelko disappeared Dec. 25, 1957, after driving home from work. She has not been seen or heard from since. Two years later, an inmate at Joliet State Penitentiary testified at a Senate Rackets Committee investigation of pinball machines that he had been paid $3,000 to help murder the woman.

However, the convict, James V. Rini, was unable to show authorities where her body was and later repudiated his confession.

In 1948, McCabe was beaten severely by two men who met him with clubs on his return home one night. He was hospitalized for a year after the attack. McCabe now is deceased.

No charges were filed in either case although McCabe asserted that gangsters and politicians displeased with their treatment in the Spectator columns were behind Miss Zelko's disappearance and his beating.

'Man Of Year'

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—The Illinois News Broadcasters Association has named the late Adlai E. Stevenson "man of the year" for 1965.

The announcement was made today by Charles Hippler of WSOY, Decatur, president of the association.

The nomination of the late United Nations ambassador and former Illinois governor was made by a committee.

Stevenson's son, Adlai III, state representative from Chicago, has been invited to accept the award in behalf of his father at the INBA spring convention in Moline.

Of HazardsBy JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer

The world welcomes the new year tonight with joyous celebration and a prayer for peace.

It is a time of merrymakers, resolutions, popping corks—and cannons. The mild weather which is forecast induces speed, traffic experts say, and warn drivers to use caution.

The West Germans will see 1966 in with a bang. They are all set to blow up $15 million worth of fireworks, almost 50 per cent more than last year.

According to German folklore, the bangs and flashes of Sylvester (New Year's Eve) are supposed to frighten off demons and evil spirits.

In the Moslem nations the observance of the new year may be somewhat subdued. It comes this year on the sixth day of Ramadan, the Moslem holy month of fasting.

The Islamic faithful have been warned that kissing and drinking are forbidden.

Roman Catholics are looking forward to the new year as the start of a special jubilee proclaimed by Pope Paul VI to mark the closing of the Vatican Ecumenical Council.

Four Traffic
Magistrates
Lose Jobs

CHICAGO (AP)—Four Traffic Court magistrates have been dropped from their $16,000-a-year jobs for what was described as failure to follow rules and regulations.

The action, announced Thursday, came as a result of a lengthy investigation of alleged payoffs and ticket fixing.

Chief Judge John S. Boyle of Circuit Court said there will be no prosecutions "because nothing of a criminal nature came out of it."

Judge Boyle said the 100-page investigative report dealt with traffic violators being discharged without appearing in court. He refused to reveal the rights of teachers as citizens.

Of the four magistrates, Boyle said, one did not wish to be reappointed, another resigned and two others were not listed for reinstatement.

However, he added that the magistrates were not reappointed because they "did not follow the rules and regulations laid down by the court."

The men are S. Joseph Formosa, 33, former assistant city corporation counsel; Ernest A. Greene, 62, a former state legislator; Melvin Kanter, 56, a former assistant public defender; and Harry H. Kleper, 52, a former assistant city corporation counsel.

Bethlehem
Ups Price
Of Steel

NEW YORK (AP)—Bethlehem Steel Co., the nation's second largest producer, announced a $5-a-ton price increase today in structural steel shapes and piling.

E. B. Bickford, vice president, said the increase, effective with shipments Saturday, was made because of growing industry acceptance for lightweight, higher-strength steel.

The company also announced a "revision" it said was generally downward in prices of certain other structural sections.

Bethlehem said it will broaden its line of lightweight steel sections, which it said are designed to reduce construction costs. The lightweight sections will be available immediately.

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY
PARIS (AP)—Arthur Goldberg, President Johnson's special envoy, told French President Charles de Gaulle today that the Viet Nam conflict can be settled only at the conference table and without prior conditions.

Goldberg, after a one hour and 20-minute conference with the French president, said that De Gaulle "of course, expressed his own view which I will report to President Johnson."

Asked by newsmen whether De Gaulle had made any constructive suggestions on how to settle the Viet Nam war, Goldberg replied:

"I cannot speak for the general."

Goldberg said he had informed De Gaulle of "President Johnson's earnest desire to seek an early and honorable settlement of the Viet Nam conflict."

"The war in Viet Nam should be settled on honorable terms. It can only be settled at the conference table without prior conditions. I said this to General De Gaulle," he said.

Of his current mission he said:

"My task is a simple one, to communicate President Johnson's views and to confirm our commitment to a settlement of the war."

OF LOYALTY OATH

CHICAGO (AP)—A state law which requires teachers to take a loyalty oath was attacked by the Illinois Education Association Thursday as a violation of the rights of teachers as citizens.

In a resolution adopted by delegates to the association's annual meeting, the group called for the repeal of the law or a court hearing to test its constitutionality.

The association has 69,000 members throughout the state.

Test North Intentions

Peace Efforts
Being WidenedIf Viet War Continues
Intensification Likely

By EDWIN Q. WHITE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—High military and diplomatic officials in Saigon predicted today that if the Viet Nam conflict goes on, military activity will be intensified in 1966.

They expressed this view on the last day of the old year as the continuing U.S. diplomatic peace offensive gave rise to more optimistic outlooks in other parts of the world.

The prediction coincided with an announcement that U.S. military strength in South Viet Nam has reached 181,000. The new year is expected to bring thousands more. There were about 23,000 American troops here last Jan. 1.

The last day of the year also brought a report that 34,585 enemy soldiers were killed in action in 1965. The figures for American dead during the year were put at 1,241 and for Vietnamese government troops at 11,000. Almost 6,000 enemy troops were said to have been captured.

Despite these figures, enemy military strength was said to have grown from about 103,000 to an estimated 230,000 as the year ended.

The figures, released by headquarters of the U.S. Military Assistance Command, Viet Nam (MACV), listed an increase in Vietnamese armed forces during the year of from about 511,000 to 565,000.

The key to victory, in the view of high officials here, still is in the hands of the Vietnamese people who work the rice paddies and who live in the little hamlets and towns of the countryside. One official summed it up this way:

Victory will take place when the people turn against the enemy. A large part of the population has been neutral. It has bent with the wind. Neither side has been able to give the people the security they yearn for. The escalation in 1965 sets a trend of bringing about a moment of decision for the peasant farmers.

These people now were seen as having three alternatives:

Staying on their land, the choice most would prefer; moving to areas of government control; or joining the Viet Cong.

The choice the people make, whether in providing intelligence or other active support or whether in remaining passive or antagonistic to the government, still is believed by many here to be the decisive factor.

"The people," said one high American, "must and will decide."

Seeks Asylum

By THOMAS A. REEDY

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—The Communists blasted a U.S. enlisted men's barracks and aimed a major New Year's offensive at a provincial capital today but took a propaganda setback with the defection of a Polish diplomat.

The Pole, Anatol Slavinski of Lodz, 25, ran into a Saigon police station this morning and asked for asylum. Other Polish diplomats ran in after him demanding his return but they left sullenly when Vietnamese police turned them down after a shouting match.

Slavinski was assigned to the Polish delegation on the three-nation International Control Commission. The commission is a peacekeeping agency created under the 1954 agreements on Indochina that freed the area from French rule and created North and South Viet Nam. Its other members are India and Canada.

The Viet Cong gave a new show of their fighting determination on the eighth day of the suspension of U.S. air raids on North Viet Nam and in defiance of the intensive American peace maneuvers abroad.

One American was killed, another was missing and 10 Americans and one Vietnamese guard were wounded in the guerrilla raid on the military compound at Dalat, a mountain resort 145 miles northeast of Saigon. The area had been relatively free of terrorism.

Five guerrillas slipped into Les Ravines billet shortly after midnight and opened fire with small arms and automatic weapons. (Continued On Page Seven)

U.S. Shows
Sincerity
Of PurposeBy SPENCER DAVIS
WASHINGTON (AP)

The Viet Nam peace offensive extended to new capitals today in what one source called a test to see if North Viet Nam is ready for "a true peace settlement."

Vu Van Thai, South Viet Nam's ambassador to the United States, also said in a Washington interview that the peace effort "is not just an ultimatum for surrender."

"I feel everything has been done to create the conditions to show we are ready in sincerely seeking a settlement."

Meanwhile, presidential envoys W. Averell Harriman and Arthur J. Goldberg were in new European capitals as part of President Johnson's peace campaign to explain the U.S. desire for negotiations to end the Viet Nam war.

Ambassador-at-large Harriman planned to talk to Yugoslavia's President Tito today, at the Brdo castle near Ljubljana. Harriman met Thursday with Polish Foreign Minister Adam Rapacki and later with Polish Communist party chief Wladyslaw Gomulka.

In addition to the Harriman and Goldberg forays, President Johnson's campaign also included an Ottawa visit between presidential assistant McGee Bundy and Canadian Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson. Pearson later talked to Johnson by telephone.

All the visits were veiled in secrecy, and made public only after the Americans had arrived at their destinations. (Continued On Page Seven)

Counterfeiters Make More Money
But Enjoy It Less; Toss It Away

By ADREN COOPER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Counterfeiters may be making more money and enjoying it less.

Phony fortunes in apparently abandoned bogus currency have turned up in recent days in California, Oklahoma and Texas.

A Secret Service official said today the finds were not related. But he said further details could not be made public because all the cases are under active investigation.

He did say that all of them appeared to be rather crude examples of the counterfeiters' art.

There has been no noticeable increase in counterfeiting activity over the past few months, the official said. However, the amount of illegal money manufactured has been running at a relatively high rate for several years.

"It is not unusual to find counterfeit money which has been dumped," the official said. "However, it is unusual for three or four batches to turn up in a short period of time."

"We find that a counterfeiter sometimes makes a large number of bills and then dumps them out of fear or panic when he discovers they cannot be passed easily. Policemen sometimes find counterfeit money left in the woods or in a building and usually there is little or no publicity in such cases."

Here are some samples that did get publicity:

In Fairfield, Calif., Wednesday, the wind wafted a stream of big bills — $50s and $20s — past a construction project.

Workers gave chase and found a shoebox stuffed with $40,000, counterfeit.

Strong winds scattered $20 bills across the street in Oklahoma City Tuesday. An off-duty policeman, Frank Ginter, spotted them, and found sacks of bills abandoned behind a concrete post. More fake money was stuffed in a storm drain.

The cache filled the trunk of Ginter's automobile. Secret Service agent Pat Steele said the counterfeit bills totaled $497,200.

Secret Service agents fished two suitcases of bills from the Trinity River at Irving, Tex., Dec. 12. Both had come open, and there was a stream of money swirling down the river. The agents said they also recovered the metal plates used to print the money.

Agent Forrest Sorrells said about $100,000 worth was taken out of the river, and an estimat-

Floods Rout
Hundreds
In Arizona

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Flood waters drove hundreds of persons from homes along the Salt River in Arizona today.

Residents in some areas of Phoenix, Tempe, Scottsdale and Mesa headed for high ground.

A runoff from recent heavy rains and melting snow sent torrents down the normally dry channel.

A boy was reported drowned after his car became trapped in the flood waters.

A storm hit northwestern Minnesota, dropping one to six inches of windblown snow. The highway department suggested travel only of an emergency nature because of poor visibility. Gusts ranged up to more than 45 m.p.h. in that section and in eastern North Dakota.

Many parts of the northern Rockies had two to three inches of snow.

Rain continued along the Pacific Coast.

The weather ended the old year with a final freakish flip — temperatures that soared to record peaks for the date in many cities in the central section.

Editorial Comment

Cheap, At That

Even in this day of $100 billion federal budgets, the average taxpayer is still staggered when he is told that a single mile of freeway slicing through an urban area costs as much as $20 million to build.

When he realizes that this is close to $4,000 a foot — to pay for land acquisition, the tearing down of existing structures, for bridges and labor and vast amounts of materials — he may well wonder if it is not an excessive premium for the convenience and efficiency of superhighways.

The answer, says the Automobile Manufacturers Association, which has an understandable interest in the matter, is a resounding "No!" It points out that on the basis of every reliable statistical source, multiple-lane freeways, built to Interstate System standards, are by far the most economical of all road systems in terms of cost per vehicle served.

One metropolitan freeway, for example, cost $15 million a mile to build. But every day it carries about 125,000 vehicles. This means that it costs about $120 a mile for each car or truck that uses it.

On the other hand, while a quiet, rural two-lane highway may cost only about $100,000 a mile to construct, it may carry perhaps 200 vehicles a day. The cost-use ratio here is about $500 a vehicle.

In general, it is estimated that a dollar spent to build a heavily traveled urban freeway gives four times as much service as a dollar spent on a more lightly used rural highway.

Both types of roads, of course, are necessary. Each is vital to the nation's transportation strength and, in terms of the role it performs, is indispensable and worth whatever it costs.

Did Our Critics Hear About This?

Maraba, Brazil, is the world's capital for Brazil nuts. At present the jungle-locked city of 35,000 in the Amazon interior can be reached only by boat or plane. In the dry season only canoes or rafts can make it by water.

So getting Maraba's products to market has been a tough nut to crack, but now the United States (of Brazil) is doing something about it, with help from the United States (of America). Under Operation Friendship, two C-130 Hercules transports from the 40th Troop Carrier Squadron at Howard AFB in the Canal Zone recently flew 22 sorties to Maraba, airlifting 270,000 pounds of heavy road building equipment from coastal Belem.

The equipment will be used to construct 120 miles of road from Maraba to the 1,700-mile highway connecting Belem with Brasilia, the nation's capital.

The airlift also carried 25,000 tons of food provided by the U.S. Food for Peace program to feed the 400 construction workers and their families.

When completed, the highway will give Maraba a long-sought link to the outside world. It may also make Brazil nuts more plentiful and a little cheaper.

Another example of Yankee economic imperialism in action.

Dear Ann:

Refuses To Add To Harm Already Done

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am almost 18—old enough to know better, but I didn't. Yesterday the doctor confirmed what I have suspected for several weeks. I am pregnant.

Last night I told my dad and mother and they went to pieces. My dad demands that I name the person who is responsible. I told him that I am the person who is responsible. The man rejected me for a year but I chased him shamelessly and finally caught him in a weak moment when he had too much to drink.

The man is my brother-in-law. If my sister knew she would surely divorce him. I don't want to break up their marriage and hurt innocent people. Furthermore they have small children whom I love dearly.

I plan to go to a home for unwed mothers and put my baby up for adoption. Then I will move to another city and start life over.

My parents are putting such terrific pressure on me to tell them who the man is that I am a wreck. Please rush your advice, Ann. I need the strength you can give me. — DONE ENOUGH ALREADY

Dear Done Enough: Your brother-in-law is getting a better break than he deserves. But I completely agree with you. Dragging his name into the mess would accomplish nothing constructive. It would only do tremendous damage. So keep quiet, my dear. You'll be glad you did.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I celebrated our 50th wedding anniversary recently. I'm not pinning any medals on myself but it hasn't been easy.

Everyone raves about my pies. They always bring the highest prices at the church bazaar. Dutch apple is my speciality.

Last night my sister and her husband were here to play a little cards. When I brought in the coffee and pie, my husband said, "You have never made a decent pie in your whole life—why don't you give it up?" I laughed, thinking it was some sort of joke. And then he said, "I could do better myself and I'll prove it."

Well, Ann, he stomped into the kitchen and started to pull out everything in sight. The guests left and I went to bed. At 3:00 A.M. he was still banging around the kitchen.

This morning the kitchen looked like a tornado had hit it. There was no pie in sight.

My sister phoned me and said I should never bake another pie for my husband as long as he lives. I'm inclined to forgive and forget. What do you say? —HURT

Dear Hurt: I say if you've lived with this nut for 50 years you don't need any advice from your sister — or from me. Just keep on doing what you're doing. Forgive and forget.

Dear Ann: The letter from the woman who gets "mysteriously stoned" on two drinks sounds like me.

Finally I went to a doctor and discovered that my system cannot handle stimulants (and some medicines) at a normal level.

If I can politely refuse a drink, I do so. If I can't, then I take a Tom Collins or something that has a lot of ice cubes in it. I drink very slowly. If the hostess wants to refill my glass, I lie a little and say, "Oh no, this is my third." When her back is turned, I get a ginger ale. So you see, Ann, a few little tricks can go a long way toward keeping people sober. —SNEAKY ALICE

Dear Alice: If this is the way to handle it, fine, but I don't see any reason to go to so much trouble.

Why not take a ginger ale to begin with and eliminate the hocus-pocus?

SHOCK NUMBER ONE

Washington Church Teen Clubs: Haven For Youths at Loose Ends

By RAY CROMLEY

Washington Correspondent. Newspaper Enterprise Assn. WASHINGTON (NEA) — More and more suburban churches around the country are organizing Teen Clubs in their Fellowship halls, not for church youth but for neighborhood teens who have no place to go.

Mission churches in the slum areas of large cities have done this for a long time. So have other churches. A new drive is on now to meet the problems of the better neighborhoods in fast-growing suburbs where uncounted thousands of teen boys and girls fiddle around outside drugstores at night. Some parents don't know. Some don't care.

These "good neighborhood" clubs have raised opposition within the churches that sponsor them, especially from older members. But they continue to grow.

Typical is the story of one such Teen Club started in Fairfax County near Washington at the Mount Vernon Methodist Church in co-operation with men and women and young people from two Lutheran, two Presbyterian and one other Methodist church in the area. The combined membership of a Friday night Intermediate Club for 12- and 13-year-olds and a High School Teen Club for 14- to 18-year-olds is around 300.

What then are the effects in this typical club in five months? A boy with long hair cuts it and begins to wear a tie. The volunteer band that comes to play reorganizes, throws out a boy who continually gets into trouble at the Teen Club. Says one band player: "We're not going to let one guy spoil things for the rest of us."

A young man who was formerly a member of a gang that fought with chains is now seriously considering going into full-time Christian service. He has tried attending church and Sunday School, says the most inspiring thing he's met up with is the Teen Club.

A 15-year-old girl found smoking in the ladies' room (not allowed at this club) says she's lonely. A boy she admires volunteers to meet her.

A lonely boy until recently always carried a sheath knife on his hip. He began hanging around a church but didn't feel at home. When the Teen Club started, he volunteered to help. He took off his knife, came dressed immaculately and began enforcing the club's strict rules with quiet dignity. The Teen Club band played a special piece for him the night he left for South Viet Nam. It was the closest anyone remembers that he ever came to crying.

One woman counselor is sitting in the club's "coffee house." Three lonesome girls came up to her, just to sit and talk. Before the evening is over, they're telling her their troubles. They want her advice.

What do these clubs offer that results in these changes? A volunteer local youth band (a drummer and some guitarists) comes and plays free. There are chess, checkers, table tennis, shuffleboard, dominoes and other games and a coffee shop where young people can buy doughnuts, cokes, orange drink — and talk. Someone among the group sings. Some dance the jerk. But most of the teens just come, gather chairs in small circles and sit and talk with each other.

Young people from the neighborhood churches are in charge. The rules are tough (no smoking, no drinking, no shorts, no slacks, no ungentlemanly language or behavior). Adult counselors and a pastor are in the background. There is no program. Yet the young people come in increasing numbers. They say: "We had no place to go."

That's what there is to it. Yet these young people change.

Times change but good taste has to be sacrificed on the altar of "progress."

By far the most popular domestic alibi is "we're doing it for the children."

Timely Quotes

When I was in government, one of the things that bothered me was that we would get calls from people saying, "We know we are about to get hurt by the police in X county, in X state," and the answer almost always had to be, "What can we do?" — Edwin R. Bayley, a member of the Howard University law school, calling for increased federal law enforcement in the South.

I think this is too important to be left to unsupervised private industry. — Joseph C. Swidler, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, on the need to maintain continuous electrical service.

MOST EXPENSIVE BUBBLY

LONDON (AP) — Three cases of champagne auctioned at the Sporting Club in London's Knightsbridge raised 300 guineas ($882) for Red Cross funds. It was nonvintage Lanson Black Label.

"That's 8 pounds 15 shillings ($22.40) a bottle, making it just about the most expensive bubbly in London," commented Capt. Mark Cogley, licensee of the Goat Tavern in Mayfair.

"The ordinary retail price of such a bottle is just over 30 shillings ($4.20)." The buyers of the champagne insisted on anonymity.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Arthritic Diet Confusion

Calls for Sound Advice

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.
Q—What would cause an unmarried 17-year-old girl to get mastitis?

A—A mild mastitis or inflammation of the breast preceding each menstrual period is a common occurrence. It is caused by a periodic stimulation of the breast tissues by female hormones. In some girls the inflammation fails to subside with the onset of the menstrual period and the mastitis becomes chronic. The underlying cause of this failure is not known.

The breasts in these girls become lumpy and painful, often more so on one side than on the other. When this occurs a small specimen of breast tissue should be removed for microscopic study to rule out cancer. The breasts should be rechecked every six months by a physician.

Hormones that counteract the female hormones have been tried as a remedy without success. The only treatment at present is to wear a tight brassiere.

Q—I am a 64-year-old housewife. For years I have been taking Darvon for sinus headaches. Is it habit-forming and are there any harmful side effects?

A — Dextropropoxyphene (Darvon) is not habit-forming. It is widely used as a mild depressant and pain reliever. In the recommended dosage there should not be any side effects.

Q—What is Darvo-Tran given for?

A—This is a combination of Darvon, aspirin, and phenaglycodol, a mild tranquilizer. It is recommended for persons whose pain is accompanied by anxiety.

Q—During my first pregnancy, the placenta began to separate in the sixth month. The baby was born dead at 7½ months. Why did this happen? Will it happen if I get pregnant again?

A—This complication is relatively rare. It occurs when the placenta is too close to the outlet of the uterus. This is entirely dependent on chance and almost never happens twice to the same woman.

Q — So many different diets have been recommended for arthritis that I am confused. Is there any diet that has been found helpful?

A—Your confusion is understandable. Write to the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation (10 Columbus Circle, New York, N.Y. 10019) for "Diet and Arthritis" by Gaynor Maddox.

This pamphlet contains sound advice and should set you on the proper course.

Q—I am fond of milk but am taking medicine for high blood pressure. I have been told not to drink milk because I am on a salt-free diet. What do you think?

A — A strict low-sodium diet would not permit milk. This type of diet is often prescribed for high blood pressure with good results.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

The Things a Woman Knows

By RUTH MILLETT

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. Every woman knows, or thinks she knows—

That the room in your house with a real lived-in look is the one that houses the television set.

That, if in a cleaning-up spree she throws away some old thing of her husband's he hasn't looked at in five years, within a week he'll be searching for it.

That a man never admits to losing anything of his own but always claims a woman (his wife or his secretary) has done something with it.

That a man can't tell a homemade cake from one made from a mix if his wife is clever enough to hide the box the mix came in.

That a man enjoys being a host much more than he enjoys being a guest.

That no matter when a household appliance stops cold and refuses to work, it always seems that it is at the worst possible time.

That if her husband should ever marry again, he wouldn't show as good judgment the second time as he did the first.

That when a father tells a child, "Go ask your mother," it's not because he believes that mother knows best, but just that he doesn't want to be bothered.

That she can size up another woman in one meeting and be right in her judgment nine times out of 10.

That if she hadn't settled for marriage, she would have been a brilliant success at something. That her house couldn't run without her even for a few weeks.

'SPIRITUAL BREAKTHROUGHS'

NEW YORK (AP)—A number of new movements sweeping religious circles in the United States, such as "spiritual healing," "speaking in tongues" and "psychic healing" (attempts to spur mystical visions with drugs) are analyzed by the Dr. Marcus Bach in a new book published by Doubleday, titled "Spiritual Breakthroughs for Our Time."

Weather Pulls Fooler Thursday

A high temperature reading of 67 was recorded at the U.S. government weather station at the WLDS transmitter at three o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Many people throughout the city enjoyed the weather in shirtsleeves, and took time out to bask in the warm temperatures.

Several convertible owners lowered their tops and were the envy of on-lookers.

The weather recorders at the station said this was the highest reading in their books. Meanwhile the more sceptical said "Watch out for April."

Where The New Year Is Born

For millions on the eastern seaboard of the United States, this is where it happens. A lighted "ball" falls from the top of a tower—and it's 1966.

But in Chicago and Winnipeg it is still 1965. In Saskatoon and Denver it is 1965. In Frisco and Vancouver it is 1965. So where in this broad continent is the New Year really born?

When it is born at all—it happens in men's own hearts! Otherwise the Old Year goes on. And older years add not their blessings but their dregs . . . as men grope for shreds of time to complete old patterns . . . remnants of hope to patch worn-out dreams.

But somewhere a heart speaks to God. In the quiet of a churchy sanctuary it recounts the past with its failures, its defeats. And boldly it enquires into the future with its hope and promise. That soul commits time and talent and treasure to the purposes of Jesus Christ.

And the Father of All, who is not clock-watcher but soul-watcher, turns the page of that calendar. For one soul at a time the New Year is born.

A NEW YEAR / A NEW CENTURY OF SERVICE

Education - Agriculture - Industry

We launch our centennial year and begin our second century of service to the people of Morgan County. The centennial symbol we introduce today, emphasizes three strong threads which are woven into the long history of our county and give it strength, character and continuity. They symbolize a community with its roots deep in the soil, with a love of knowledge and devotion to learning, and with a plan for industrial progress and continuing economic opportunities for its people.

Since 1866 Elliott State Bank has provided financial services for the people of Morgan County. It has advanced the capital and underwritten the growth of our farms, industries, institutions, and retail and service establishments. We are proud to have been a partner in the progress of these past 100 years.

To all who have helped us achieve this milestone of service we express our gratitude and pledge renewed dedication to the growth and well-being of our community as we begin a New Year...a New Century of Service.

Polly's Pointers Why Clean Before Parties?

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — Many homemakers put off party-giving be-rooms a good "top cleaning." After with a sheet of plastic to furniture and polishing those dulled floors can be done well sense. Stick with us, boys. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY—When mama could not find my shower cap she tried pinning up my long hair, but it would not stay. I put a nylon stocking on my head with a knot tied in the end to keep it out of the bathtub. I am just 8 years old but wanted to send my Pointer. — CYNTHIA

Age is no barrier and I am sure some of the grown-up ladies will be picking up yours. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I found the Pointer about washing vases and ornaments while doing dishes another real lifesaver. My Pointer is somewhat similar. I never seemed to have time to clean kitchen cupboards and drawers but found that the task is easily accomplished by doing one section at a time while washing dishes. — C. S. P.

DEAR POLLY—Perhaps others have also had the problem of trying to clean the spoon in the sugar bowl when the cover is on. I have solved this at my house by using a curved handle baby spoon in my sugar bowl instead of the regular long-handled sugar spoon. — DIANA

DEAR POLLY—My pointer is one I use two, three even four times a week. When the butter on the dish gets down to about an inch or so, I pick up the remaining soft butter with a spatula and spread it on the bottom of a fresh quarter-pound stick. This "cements" it to the fresh clean dish and prevents it from sliding around. — MRS. J. J. H.

Here is a hand that almost caused a fight in an all-expert rubber bridge game about 35 years ago. The slam contract was a good one, although the bidding is not what one would expect today.

North was pretty proud of his hand and remarked as he put down the dummy, "Probably down two."

West looked it over mournfully and said, "How can it be down two with a dummy like that?"

South had no trouble going down one. He took two trump finesses and West made both his king and queen, whereupon South really became mad.

West should not have said anything. It is good to remember that you only need the words pass, double, redouble, no-trump, spades, hearts, diamonds, clubs and the numbers from one to seven to carry on a complete bridge conversation. Silence is golden. But that really did not affect South's play. He had taken the best percentage and it just happened that the best percentage did not work this time.

There are three plays at declarer's disposal with this card combination. None will work if West holds king-queen-small. The play that South did take would work against all combinations except the actual one.

The other two plays would have worked this time but each would fail against two combinations. The worst play, which is to finesse once and then play the ace, would lose against a singleton king or queen in the West hand. The second-best play which is to play the ace immediately, would lose against king-queen-small or king-queen and two small in the East hand, and as already stated, all plays would lose should West hold the king-queen and a small trump.

Peace

In Texas, White House press secretary Bill D. Moyers said discussions also were going on between U.S. officials and other governments. Moyers, however, declined to discuss them further. Some sources say the United States is seeking peace talks through intermediaries.

Moyers said the President, spending the holidays at his Texas ranch, is keeping in touch with Secretary of State Dean Rusk, but added: "The extent to which he is receiving reports is something I am unable to deal with."

The peace hopes received another swipe from Radio Hanoi Thursday when Radio Hanoi declared:

"As long as the U.S. aggressors are still unwilling to really recognize our government's stand, all their contentions about peace negotiations are only hypocritical and aimed at deceiving public opinion."

The four-point stand of our government and the five-point statement of the South Viet Nam (Communist Viet Cong guerrilla) National Liberation Front provide a very fair and reasonable basis for a political settlement of the Viet Nam problem.

"If an end is to be put to the state of war, there is only one and most simple way, that is, the U.S. aggressive troops must withdraw from South Viet Nam and the settlement of affairs of Viet Nam must be left to the Vietnamese themselves."

Similar statements were made earlier this week by Communist North Viet Nam.

Nonetheless, informed Washington sources expressed some guarded optimism that the current peace probes may yet bring some results. At least, it was noted, there has been no rebuff to the lull in bombing operations against North Viet Nam.

The World Today

By J. W. DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP)—Things will go bad for you all through the new year if you sneeze while getting ready for bed tonight.

That's one of a long list of beliefs that people—some people, anyhow—associate with New Year's.

A Library of Congress researcher found, for example, there are many believers in the "first footer" twist of fate. This means that the first visitor to cross a threshold on New Year's Day brings with him good or bad luck for the whole year.

A dark-haired man, it seems, is the best bet for good luck. A red-haired man is the worst.

Some other beliefs: Good luck will be your reward if you place a piece of money on the window sill on New Year's Eve.

If by tonight you don't have a 1966 calendar, you may very well be late for appointments all year long.

You might get a line on the future by dipping into your Bible or hymn book tonight, and taking a chosen-at-random text for your guide through 1966.

Then there's the matter of new year resolutions. The World Book Encyclopedia traces their background this way:

"In ancient Rome, the first day of the year was given over to honoring Janus, the god of gates and doors and of beginnings and endings...Janus had two faces, and looked both ahead and backward."

"On the first day of the year the Roman people looked back to what had happened during the past year and thought of what the coming year might bring..."

"The early English took over many of the Roman new year customs. Later English people followed the custom of cleaning the chimneys on New Year's Day. This was supposed to bring good luck to the household during the coming year. Today we say 'cleaning the slate' instead of 'cleaning the chimney.' This means making resolutions to correct faults and bad habits, and resolving to make the new year better."

The National Geographic Society says that celebrating the new year is as old as mankind, that the Babylonians, Egyptians, Romans and Greeks all whooped it up.

The Babylonians chose a temporary king, whose only job was to usher in the new year and then be sacrificed to the gods, a Geographic article related. It continued:

"The person who had the unwanted privilege of appeasing the gods while amusing the uproarious populace, by paying with his life for his brief occupancy of the throne, may have been a prisoner, political or otherwise, who had already run afoul of the laws."

"Things did not go according to plan during the reign-for-a-day of a certain second millennium gardener named Enlilbani. During his one-day ritual, the real king died in his palace while sipping a hot brew. The opportunistic gardener seized upon the prank of fate and continued to rule very capably for no less than 24 years."

Indict 26 Men For Stealing Federal Goods

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal grand jury indicted 26 men Thursday in connection with the theft of millions of dollars worth of government property from the Charleston, S.C., Naval Base.

FBI agents quickly arrested 11 of the men and hoped to arrest the four still at large shortly. The FBI previously had rounded up 11 others who are free on bond awaiting trial.

Ten of the thirteen counts in the indictment charged the group with the theft of government property or receiving government property. Two counts charged them with interstate transportation of stolen property in connection with the thefts.

FBI headquarters said the arrests and the indictment by a grand jury in Charleston climaxed a year-long investigation of a five-year plot to steal government property from the naval base.

FBI agents have recovered more than $250,000 worth of property which included marine diesel engine parts, typewriters, insulated jugs, and brass and metal fixtures, plates and rods.

The FBI said that 20 of the men worked at the naval base. It said one of them—Henry H. Harris—was director of the naval supply center's storage division and "played an important role in the conspiracy by using his authority as director... to transfer co-defendants to various places and by calling 'safe meetings' of personnel not involved to facilitate the thefts and removal of property."

Three truck drivers named in the indictment, the FBI said, would drive their trucks into the base to pick up and transport stolen government property.

Much of the property, the FBI said, was sold to or through three dealers in marine diesel engine parts, all of whom are named in the indictment. They are Lamar Dennis, whose business is at 4257 Decatur St., New Orleans; Philip Bodne of the General Equipment Co. of Charleston and Miami; and Melvin McCuen of the Marin Industrial Supply firm, 645 W. Anaheim St., Long Beach, Calif.

The bureau said some of the stolen property was sold to purchasers in Florida, California, Virginia, Louisiana, Texas and Oregon.

Each of the 13 counts carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Embezzler Says All Funds Lost In Betting Binge

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Howard L. Raley, a mild-mannered and neat accountant, told a judge Thursday he doesn't have a cent of the $1,585,800 he stole from his employers in three years.

He said he lost it all—and then some—on a gambling binge that started with a $5 bet on the Baltimore Colts football team.

"I'm a compulsive gambler," said Raley. Balding at 30, the slightly built bookkeeper told his story to Judge Dulany Foster in Baltimore Criminal Court. He wore a gray suit, white shirt and dark tie. He wept as he spoke.

"If I had any money, I'd gladly make restitution."

These were Raley's last words on the witness stand. Foster then sentenced him to 60 years in prison.

He pleaded guilty to five charges of larceny and one of altering a check. The money was taken from Ramsey Scarlett & Co., a shipping company which hired Raley six years ago, and an auxiliary stevedoring firm.

More than half the stolen money—$880,500—was taken this year. None has been recovered.

Raley said he played cards for money when he was just a boy selling newspapers. He remembered his first major bet as a man, that $5 wager on the Colts in the National Football League. He won.

The professional gambler who handled that transaction told him he could bet daily on all kinds of sporting events, said Raley, and he was hooked.

By the time the losses were discovered Sept. 27 through notices sent to the companies by two banks, Raley said this was the picture:

His wife and other relatives had mortgaged their assets trying to bail him out of trouble. He had lost all the money he had stolen, was paying gamblers $30,000 a week to settle his accounts with them, had been threatened with death for non-payment, and still owed them $228,000.

Prosecutors said he gave them the names of two gamblers.

Raley told the court he had stolen blank checks from the company safes which had already been signed by firm officials and kept for emergency purposes. He then filled in amounts ranging to $30,000 and cashed the checks at a Baltimore bank.

Price Hikes May Become New Trend

WASHINGTON (AP) — Living costs, swinging upward, increased two-tenths of one per cent in November and a Labor Department spokesman said Thursday there is "psychological" danger of getting used to price hikes.

"I think it is very important to keep watching prices because of the psychological situation," said Deputy Commissioner Robert J. Myers of the Bureau of Labor Statistics. His comment came as he reported a new high of 110.6 in the government's consumer price index for last month.

Up 10.6 Cents

The index figure means typical family living costs such as food, housing, clothing, medical care and a few luxuries cost 10.6 cents more on the dollar than in the 1957-59 base period.

Figured in other terms, the 1957-59 dollar was worth only 90.4 cents last month.

All major items except food went up in November, and Myers said a further increase is expected when December prices are measured.

Myers said he does not think the war in Viet Nam had much to do with the rise in consumer prices.

"This is a real increase," Myers said, adding that prices usually remain steady in November.

He said there is reason to hope the rate of price increases is now the steepest in seven years — could be held to "Moderate" levels in the foreseeable future.

The index was 1.7 per cent higher than November 1964, compared with an annual increase of less than 1.3 per cent in the previous five years.

lets, tracer bullets and 20mm cannon shells which the government said were running low during the strike.

But Pentagon spokesmen emphasized that, up to now, there has been no ammunition shortage in Viet Nam.

The agreement was initiated by the three unions involved Thursday night.

Members of the striking AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists — representing most of the strikers — rejected four earlier tentative contracts, but Simkin said he expected the latest offer to be ratified. The three unions have scheduled votes over the holiday weekend.

The other two unions are the AFL-CIO International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and the Western Employees Trade Council, composed of several bargaining units.

The administration had indicated it would resort to a Taft-Hartley Act injunction to halt the strike for 80 days if the latest contract offer were rejected.

Although the Army announced Thursday it would reactivate its Badger ammunition plant in Baraboo, Wis., it would take six months to begin manufacturing gunpowder there. Reopening of the Wisconsin plant, in mothballs for the past eight years, will go ahead regardless of the outcome of the strike vote, the Pentagon said.

Defense officials have never said precisely how low gunpowder supplies had fallen during the long strike, but it was hinted by federal officials that the government could not wait much longer to get production going again.

Workers at the plant now average $2.78 per hour.

Sen. Bayh Seeks 'Power Pooling' For Area States

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., asked the Rural Electrification Administration Thursday to take any steps necessary to avoid a massive power failure in the planned pooling of rural power resources in Indiana, Kentucky and Illinois.

Bayh wrote to REA Administrator Norman M. Clapp that "The pooling of resources unquestionably will effect significant economy and will improve power service to 163,000 rural consumers — 95,000 of them in Indiana."

But Bayh added that, "In view of the recent massive power failures in the Northeast and Southwest, it seems to me that every precaution should be taken to prevent any similar occurrence in the areas affected by this new undertaking."

Earlier, the REA announced loans totaling $68.5 million to generating and transmitting co-operatives in the three states. The loan includes pooling the resources of the 22-member systems of Indiana Statewide Rural Electric Cooperative, Indianapolis; Big Rivers Rural Electric Cooperative, Henderson, Ky.; and Southern Illinois Power Cooperative, Marion, Ill. The pooling arrangement is expected to reduce the need for REA loans in the next five years by $11.5 million and cut power costs by $16.7 million over the next 10 years.

Claims Surgery May Have Cured Krebiozen Users

CHICAGO (AP)—A professor of medicine testified Thursday that surgery could have produced a cure in a cancer patient that promoters of Krebiozen credited to their drug.

Another professor said another Krebiozen user could have had her cancer destroyed by surgery if she had agreed to Krebiozen instead.

The evidence was given in behalf of the government in its prosecution on conspiracy and fraud charges, of four sponsors of Krebiozen, a drug taken by some cancer sufferers.

Earlier in the trial that has been in progress since April the defense cited the case of David Lieberman, now 78. In 1951 he was given Krebiozen as a treatment for cancer of the bladder.

He also was given electronic surgery (fulguration) but the defendants contended Krebiozen had effected a cure.

Dr. James H. McDonald, professor of urology at the University of Illinois medical school, told the U.S. District Court jury that fulguration rather than Krebiozen, could have been responsible.

Edward J. Calihan, lawyer for Dr. Stevan Durovic, discoverer of Krebiozen and a defendant, asked if fulguration could excise cancer cells that had spread from superficial parts of the bladder to the lymph glands. Dr. McDonald replied that the pathology report on the patient did not show the cancer had spread to those glands.

Dr. John G. Masterson, professor of gynecology at Loyola University, testified surgery could have cured Miss Eleanor Gahan, 37, of uterine cancer. She refused surgery and underwent Krebiozen treatment in 1951.

The government said that a promotional booklet published by the Krebiozen Foundation stated that treatment with the drug reduced her symptoms.

The other three men on trial are Dr. Durovic's brother and financial backer, Marko Durovic; Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, chief medical sponsor of Krebiozen, and Dr. William F.P. Phillips, a general practitioner.

Senate majority leader Raymond Dzendziel, a Detroit Democrat, asks "how the governor can take credit for these programs when we've been introducing them for 30 years?"

Broadened school and university aid, senior citizen property tax relief and greatly expanded benefit for unemployed and injured workers were among major measures passed. Romney says 70 to 75 per cent of his program won approval.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels and aerospace issues helped pace a yearend stock market to new highs in the averages late this afternoon. Trading was active.

Volume for the day was estimated at 7.1 million shares compared with 7.06 million Thursday.

Here was the picture near the close.

Steels rallied almost from the start on news of Bethlehem's steel price increase. Although their best gains were sliced, steels remained well ahead.

Aerospace defense stocks spurred as the U.S. peace offensive regarding Viet Nam seemed to be producing no positive results.

Chemicals, blue chips, most airlines, some rails, tobaccos, mail order-retails, rubbers and oils helped boost the averages.

Gains of a point or better were scored by Wheeling Steel, Lukens, National Steel and Jones & Laughlin. Bethlehem led a small fractional gain.

Du Pont rose more than 3. Eastman Kodak more than 2. As defense stocks rallied, Boeing and United Aircraft went up nearly 2 each, Douglas Aircraft around 1½, General Dynamics a fraction.

Studebaker was up about a point. General Motors and other leading auto stocks fractions except for Ford, which eased.

Airlines continued to forge ahead.

Del E. Webb, up a fraction, seemed to be leading the list on volume.

Gains of a point or so were made by Kennecott, New York Central, U.S. Rubber, Xerox and International Nickel.

Prices were mostly higher in heavy trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mostly unchanged. U.S. Treasury bonds declined.

Wallace Suffers Fractured Wrist

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Alabama Gov. George A. Wallace, onetime amateur boxing champ, fractured his right wrist Thursday while slugging the heavy bag in the gym of a hotel.

The wrist was put in a cast, which was expected to remain for four to five weeks. An aide said Wallace probably won't be able to sign state papers but won't be hampered otherwise.

Wallace, Golden Gloves heavyweight champion (118 pounds maximum) in Alabama in 1936-37, came here to attend the Orange Bowl football game between Alabama and Nebraska.

Now a trim 160, Wallace still works out occasionally.

Grains Have Typical Market For Year's End

By GIL MAYO

AP Business News Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—Uncertainty and thin trade held the grain futures market within a narrow range generally this week and prices closed mostly slightly easier.

Brokers called it a typical yearend market; one in which a good deal of the activity usually is limited to trading in small quantities and to write off any losses for tax purposes. Many speculators were absent from the pits all week.

Commercial buying, particularly for domestic accounts, nearly always is at a minimum during the holiday period and this year was no exception. Export bookings were few and in only moderate amounts.

Speculators who remained active did so without benefit of any significant market influences until late in the week when President Johnson made known he had begun a strong effort to bring about negotiations for settlement of

New Berlin Claims Waverly Tourney Title, 51-50

CRIMSONS GAIN SEVERAL PRIZES

Jacksonville's Crimson came home with the consolation championship trophy from the second Carbondale tournament, but perhaps more important, four big games under their belts that may turn the Jacks into a different ball club the remainder of the season.

While the entire team did itself proud, at least one individual on the Crimson grabbed some honors for himself. Ron Coleman, who looms as an almost certain all-stater already, was one of the most popular figures with the many college scouts on hand for the 16-team affair that ended Wednesday.

And why not? The 6-2 senior standout broke by 12 points the old tournament scoring record. Coleman stashed in 93 points in the four games, on games of 27, 22, 18 and 26, erasing the old mark of 81 set the first year by Lynn Howerton of Carbondale High, now an outstanding freshman basketball at SIU.

More impressive was Coleman's selection by the radio and press covering the tournament as the tournament's outstanding player, and his unanimous selection to the first team all-tournament picks. Coleman also broke the old tournament record for most field goals in the meet.

JHS coach Rich Jones had no complaints with his Crimson, after their disappointing first game, and was quite pleased with their progress shown during the four-game stint.

"We fulfilled our wish of getting in four games. That was our objective when we came down here. We have a young team and needed experience. Our organization began showing for the first time, the kids decided to stay in and their offense started to click. This is something we haven't been doing all year."

"After our first game in which we didn't play very good, we came back in the second half against Marion and played well the rest of the tournament. I think we'll come back a different team."

The experience we picked up here really did us good. The kids were a little nervous in the first game against Olney, and made a lot of mistakes. Some of the kids were a little shook, and this is only typical."

"In the second half in the Marion game the kids got together and started to click. Marion had a good ball club. The kids played a tremendous second half. Rich Coble played a tremendous defensive game the entire tournament."

"The kids picked up their shooting too. Coble, Duane Hess, Robin Manker and Gary Ginder all had not had good games lately, and this picked them up. They all had good games here. We didn't change anything in the second half against Marion, the kids just started bearing down and started helping on their screens. They held Marion, a high-scoring team, to only 14 points in the second half."

"We didn't have any trouble with the presses after the first game, and all the teams pressed at least part of the time. The fans here at Carbondale were really surprised at the comeback the team made after the first game. They said they never saw a team so dismal one day and make such a comeback the next."

Besides Coleman on the first all-tournament team were Tam Parker of Collinsville who scored 87 points in the four games his team played on the way to winning the tourney, Ron Sterchi of Olney, Early Lester of Carbondale and Carl Jenkins of Decatur Eisenhower. Coleman was the only repeater on the first and second all-tournament teams.

Pleasant Hill Takes IVC Title By 52-43

WHITE HALL — A disastrous 14 point second half by the North Greene Spartans allowed Pleasant Hill to overcome a slim two point halftime deficit to gain a 52-43 triumph for the IVC tournament championship. Winchester capped third place honors in the meet with a come-from-behind 70-57 conquest over Southwestern.

The championship battle, tied nine times during the first half, saw the Spartans carry a 28-26 lead into the intermission, before the roof fell in.

Pleasant Hill's high point man for the evening, Keith Johnston, put the top-rated Wolves on top for good late in the third period at a 37-36 status, while four more tallies moved the spread to 41-36 at the third stop. Johnston collected 17 points for the 40% shooting Wolves, while Gary James added 11 for the fading North Greene attack.

Rex Brockhouse's 27 point second half effort garnered the third place finish for Winchester in the opener, as the Wildcats put on a 43 point second half showing to down Southwestern 70-57.

Trailing during the early action by 17-3, Winchester managed to cut the gap to 21-13 at the quarter, before closing in to a 30-27 deficit.

Lynn Mikus maneuvered a three point play with 5:00 remaining in the third frame to put the Wildcats up for the first time at 33-32, but it wasn't until Brockhouse's two o-pointer with 3:00 to go that the victors gained the edge for keeps. Brockhouse, who hauled down 17 rebounds, recorded 34 in the contest, with Gary Watson countering with 25 for Southwestern.

The win moved Winchester to a 4-5 mark on the season, while Southwestern now stands 3-7.

FROM WAY DOWN: New Berlin ace Tom Muench scores two points on an underhanded layup around Lincolnwood's Bill Arter. Muench was one of the outstanding players in the tournament despite playing with an ankle not fully healed after a break.

JHS Matmen Claim Lanphier Tourney

SPRINGFIELD — The Jacksonville Crimson matmen walked off with five individual titles, while the Lanphier 6-3, a match which followed his fall over Feitshans' Pressler in 3:08.

Art McPike (112), Roger Spaulding (120), Wes Hillgoss (138), Larry Nortrup (145), and weight division championships first place finishes for the Crimson, while Chip Sutphen capped a second, and Dave Hornbeck and Terry Hammers collected fourths in the competition.

McPike moved through the first two rounds in impressive style before decisioning Woods of Lanphier 6-3, a match which followed his fall over Feitshans' Pressler in 3:08.

Gaining identical 3-1 margins in the first two rounds, Spaulding captured the Crimson's second win of the day, pinning Dennis of Normal in 5:23.

Wes Hillgoss recorded the third conquest by marching through the field with 7-2, 5-2, and 4-2 triumphs. The 158-pounder gained the crown over Price of Shelbyville.

Nortrup recorded the fastest fall of the tourney in the first round of 145 pound action, but had a close time of it in coping the crown. Larry, a senior, dropped Young of Shelbyville in only .33 for his first win, while taking the championship by a slim 3-2 margin over Winch of Springfield high.

One hundred-fifty four pounder Bob Dennis grabbed Jacksonville's final triumph of the competition with a 7-0 trouncing of Randall from Springfield.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Northwestern pulled away from Louisiana State University in the closing minutes Thursday and defeated the Tigers 98-86 for seventh place in the Los Angeles basketball Classic at the Sports Arena.

The Wildcats, who fell behind in the opening moments, did not shake loose from LSU until midway through the second half when three baskets by Jim Pitts and two free throws by Jim Burns gave them a 74-64 lead. LSU's Harry Heroman led all scorers with 28 points. Pitts had 26 points and 13 rebounds and Burns 20 points for Northwestern.

Closely - Matched Game Goes To Wire

WAVERLY — A fired-up New Berlin team claimed the 15th Waverly Tournament championship, here Thursday evening, nipping a good Lincolnwood team at the wire, 51-50, before a standing-room only crowd.

The closely-matched contest did not have more than three points separating the two clubs from the middle of the second quarter to the thrilling finish that wasn't decided until the final gun.

Kincaid nipped Glenwood, 59-57, in another barnburner for third place.

The winning margin in the title game was actually a free throw by Herman Prince with 45 seconds left in the game, but plenty of action was packed into the remaining time.

Lincolnwood's scrappy little guard Greg Neunaber threw in a bucket with 33 seconds left in the game to pull the top-rated Lancers to within 51-50. New Berlin star Tom Muench missed a free throw with ten seconds left and Lincolnwood got the ball on jump off the rebound. A desperation shot from midcourt by Neunaber fell short to end the contest.

New Berlin shot 46% from the field on 20 of 43 shots during the evening, and sank 11 of 13 charity chances. Lincolnwood, experiencing a cold first half, managed to hit 21 of 66 tries from the field for a 31% clip, and missed but two of ten free tosses. The taller Lancers outscored the winners 24-21, mostly in the second half.

Slow Down Lancers
The Pretzels slowed down the fast-breaking Lancers in the first half and managed to get the favored team to play more their style. Muench, playing with an ankle not wholly healed yet, teamed up with sophomore Frank Kaaz in a sparkling offensive effort that netted 36 points between them.

The score was tied once in the first quarter at 3-3, before Kaaz added six points and Muench two to shove the Pretzels into an 11-6 margin at the close of the chapter, as Lincolnwood hit only two of their 16 shots in the period. New Berlin jumped out to the biggest difference in the game to open the second stanza, as Muench and Kaaz displayed some good moves in close and pushed the Pretzels into a 17-8 margin.

From there Lincolnwood's Lynn Johnson hit two layups and a short jumper to tie the game at 18-18. The score was tied three more times in the opening half, and at the close when Johnson tipped in a bucket with eight seconds left, 24-24.

The game was tied four times in the third quarter, and the lead changed hands on four occasions. New Berlin gained a slim 38-36 lead at the close of the chapter when Kaaz drove the baseline for two points with :30 to play in the frame. New Berlin hit seven of their 12 shots in the quarter, but were outscored 11-1.

Game Stays Close
Lincolnwood's Joe Etter kept the Lancers in the race in the early going of the closing eight minutes, with a steal worth two points and a clutch free throw. The score was tied at 42-42 and Lincolnwood took a 46-45 edge on Neunaber's steal with 3:40 left in the game.

After two more ties the lead changing hands twice more, Steve Riess drove underneath for a layup that made it 50-48 with 1:40 to play. Prince's free toss with 45 seconds left seemingly sewed the game up before Neunaber's corner shot that closed to gap to one with :33 left.

Kincaid had their hands full with Glenwood in the consolation game, finally winning on clutch free throws by Jim Wyzard and Bill Mayer in the final two minutes.

The first game was tied six times and the lead changed hands seven times. Typical of the play came in the opening minutes of the contest when Kincaid scored the first nine points of the game and Glenwood came back to score the next nine.

Lincolnwood broke the four-game scoring record in the tournament, amassing 295 in their four outings. Glenwood sophomore center Bob Esslinger was the tournament's leading scorer with 75 points, followed by Johnson of Lincolnwood with 72.

Auburn won the cheerleading trophy for the tournament.

Trotters In Big Show Here Tonight

Millions of basketball games have been played since the late Dr. James Naismith invented the sport back in 1891, but tonight's match between the amazing Harlem Globetrotters, the razzle dazzle kings and Washington (D.C.) Generals at JHS Bowl rates as something extra special.

Not only is a visit of the Globetrotters an eagerly-awaited event everywhere in the world, but a multitude of records will be established.

The celebrated magicians of the court, observing their 40th anniversary season of continuous play, establish a new record of some sort every second once a game gets under way. It could be for most games, victories, miles traveled, minutes played, points scored, fouls committed, free throws and highest aggregate attendance.

The Trotters, themselves, however, care little for those marks. Their main objective is to win and give the fans a full evening of entertainment and thrills they'll long remember.

That's why they're bringing the great Bratislava Slovakian Folkloric Dancers ensemble of 40 from Czechoslovakia to add to the evening's entertainment with their brilliant performance.

That's why the Trotters' anniversary edition of players is so exceptional, headed by the peerless Meadowlark Lemon, showman supreme, surrounded by the likes of Connie Hawkins, Fred Neal, Hubert Ausbie, Troy Collier, Bill Barnes, Doug Himes, Hallie Bryant, Leroy Walker and Mel Davis.

The season opened with the Trotters boasting a 39-season record of 8,434 victories against a mere 322 defeats and a winning streak that had reached 1,059 over the past three years in games played in 87 countries on six continents. They've been adding steadily to these marks.

This doesn't mean they're home free tonight for the Generals have a team capable of at least giving them quite a skirmish. With giants like Orb Bowling, former University of Tennessee ace, and Frank Stephens, both 6-10, and Frank Szarnicki, 6-9, pacing an excellent array of former collegiate acres, the Gens are rough and tough.

But the Trotters have the knack of getting things in such shape during a game whereby they find plenty of opportunity to put on their patented comedy, sleight-of-hand, magic and razzle dazzle.

A preliminary game between two Jacksonville amateur teams, Coke and Anderson-Clayton, will start off the evening's activities, in a game to start at 8 p.m.

The dance group will perform before the Trotters open their show at 8 p.m.

A good crowd is expected, but there will be tickets on sale at the door.

2 Packers Ailing In Practice

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Fullback Jim Taylor favored a pulled groin muscle and quarterback Bart Starr still was below par in his passing Thursday as favored Green Bay prepared for Sunday's National Football League title game with the Cleveland Browns.

Taylor did little running in the practice session on a slippery field. Starr reported his sore right side felt better, and showed improved passing form, but he was not up to par.

Asked if it was safe to assume that Starr would start, Coach Vince Lombardi said "He's got to throw a lot better than he did today."

However, Starr was confident he would be the quarterback Sunday. "I plan to play," he said.

Taylor suffered the muscle pull in the Dec. 12 game at Baltimore, but played the rest of the season, just as he is expected to do Sunday.

Paul Hornung, who came out of Sunday's playoff game with a bruised right leg, was running in high gear and ready for the big test.

Lombardi said the Packers would work out for about an hour Friday, their last hard drill. He still was undecided about Saturday routine. It is possible they will turn up for a 15-minute loosening up practice New Year's morning before the Browns are due to practice.

Cleveland is due in Friday night.

BIG PLAY: This bucket seen about to go in would have been a clincher for New Berlin in the closing seconds of the championship game of the Waverly tournament Thursday night, but a foul was whistled on Lincolnwood's Lynn Johnson (40). Tom Muench, shooting for New Berlin, missed the free throw and gave Lincolnwood another chance to pull the game out before time ran out.

DIRECTING TRAFFIC: New Berlin coach Kevin Moore points an emphatic finger at one of his players evidently not in the right spot. Moore's Pretzels won their first Waverly Tournament title Thursday night.

College Stars Face Post-Season Tests

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
Donny Anderson will close out his brilliant varsity career, rifle-armed sophomore Billy Stevens will be on the firing line, and a pair of richly talented all-star teams will have at each other in three games Friday ushering in college football's biggest post-season weekend.
Anderson, the two-time All-America halfback, will lead Texas Tech against Georgia Tech in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla. Stevens, the prolific passer, and his Texas Western teammates will play favored Texas Christian in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex.
And at San Francisco, East will tangle with West in the first Shrine Game.
But the top ones come Saturday — the New Year's Day spectacles. This time the four big bowls will show off the country's six leading teams, and the national championship will be at stake.
Top-ranked Michigan State plays fifth-ranked UCLA in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif.; Arkansas, No. 2, takes on Louisiana State in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas; third-ranked Nebraska and fourth-ranked Alabama battle in the Orange Bowl at Miami; and sixth-ranked Missouri meets Florida in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans.
A special poll will be conducted by The Associated Press after the New Year's action, with the national title going to the No. 1 team.
Anderson may write his biggest headline after the Gator Bowl game — with his signature on a pro contract. Both Green Bay of the National Football League and Houston of the American Football League are after the versatile Texas Tech flash, and it might take a fabulous sum to get him — something like $800,000 in bonus and salary guarantees.

Anderson is one of many collegiate prizes who will be eligible to sign with the pros after bowl games.
Stevens isn't one, however, with two seasons left to add to his remarkable passing figures for Texas Western. This year, despite a series of injuries, he threw for 3,032 yards and 21 touchdowns.
Texas Christian was 6-4 for the regular season to Texas Western's 7-3, but the Horned Frogs rate as favorites in the Sun Bowl. Three of TCU's losses were to nationally ranked teams, Nebraska, Arkansas and Texas Tech.
All-America running backs Mike Garrett of Southern California and Jim Grabowski of Illinois will be on opposing sides in the East-West game, and each squad has a large group of huge, hard-hitting linemen.
John Hankinson of Minnesota and Tom Hodges of Virginia are the East's passers, opposing Paul Stein of Air Force and Ted Hulin of Washington.
Michigan State zoomed from nowhere to the top national ranking, and has a 10-0 record that includes a season-opening 13-3 victory over UCLA. The Spartans won the Big Ten, loaded with talent in every department, are heavily favored to trim the Bruins again in their Rose Bowl encounter.
Arkansas also is a solid choice to rack up its 23rd straight victory, over LSU in the Cotton Bowl.
The weekend action all will be on television, except for the Sun Bowl, starting with Friday's Gator Bowl and closing with the Orange Bowl Saturday night.

U.S. Troops In Viet Nam Looking Forward To 1966

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—The hard little guy, 21 years in the Army, removed his cigar and staring straight ahead into nothing said: "Only two more days."
To what?
"To the end of this damn year!" he snapped.
That's how one GI at war in South Viet Nam regards this date on the calendar. It means he got through 1965—and 1966 is that worst of all things to a simple man: the imponderable.
"Mixed-Up Guys"
GI Joe is one of the most mixed-up guys in the world right here. All the troop information and education programs in modern history are unable to resolve the paradoxes, the anomalies, the cheer puzzle of a war that is undeclared but no less bloody.
Everybody knows they are to preserve South Viet Nam's independence from the Communist Viet Cong insurgents and from the pressure from North Viet Nam.
They all have access to the news daily, and what is that news?
The U.S. Air Force and Navy bomb North Viet Nam. Suddenly they stop, as though in hopes of peace talks. But they continue to whack away at South Viet Nam insurgent nests in attacks which may be killing some of the people they're sent here to defend. Cease-fires for Christmas on both sides are declared but don't last long.

Questions Arise
The guy out there in the boon-docks knows the Viet Cong he calls "Charlie" can get at him from neighboring Cambodia and Laos and get back to those hide-outs when he chooses. Respect for the integrity of those borders is required. But what's this about whether American air power should blast the Ho Chi Minh supply trail in both countries? It would make military sense, political dynamite.
The biggest fleet in the world stands offshore such a posture of air and sea power that would make ancient Rome, Elizabethan Britain and the Hitlerian Third Reich tremble. But the Charlies still are boss of the waterways threading through Viet Nam.
The country GI Joe is defending hasn't got any political parties except the Viet Cong—the only viable party in existence is the one you're sworn to eradicate. The military runs the country. The Buddhists and the Roman Catholics run their own shows as though the other didn't either exist or count.
The United States talks of sending in 420,000 tons of rice to a country that grows rice abundantly in peacetime. The fight starts to keep the rice out of Charlie's tax-collecting hands when he stores it into a village and exacts dues in something less than Robin Hood style.

The Hanoi Reds say they'll talk peace only if the Americans go home. The Americans say they'll talk peace only if the Viet Cong lay down their Oriental shillelachs. Each wants the other defanged.
The Army sends a convoy out on the roads only rarely. All that steel doesn't bother Charlie. He just pumps down the plunger on an electronic mine, and blots. So everything goes by air which is so busy something is going up or landing at Tan Son Nhut airport every 15 seconds. There's a standing joke that the punishment for fouling up on a job is to be assigned to the control tower.
You get a break for "rest and relaxation" and can't find a ride. It was ever thus with the serviceman, hurry up, stand around and wait. That at least he can understand. His old man told him that's the way it was in those old wars.
Everyone says to himself "I'm going to walk out of here" but he's only whistling in the dark. He remembers a buddy who didn't.
M. Sgt. Charley Musselwhite, of Cordele, Ga., said after six months of rough going with the 101st Airborne: "The only ground you command around here is the ground you're standing on."

U.S., Russ Timing Eyed With Suspicion

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
One of the most intriguing aspects of the diplomatic activity whirling about Viet Nam is the timing of U.S. and Soviet moves. There are some, particularly the Red Chinese, who will regard this as more than coincidence.
Top U.S. diplomatic figures take off on mysterious missions. The U.S. ambassador in Moscow sees the Soviet president and foreign minister. The Russians plan to send a high-powered Communist party delegation to North Viet Nam.
Claim No Connection
U.S. sources in Moscow say there is no connection between the lull in U.S. bombing and the impending visit to Hanoi of a Soviet delegation headed by Alexander N. Shelepin. But if the bombing lull should persist through the Shelepin visit, Peking's suspicions that there is joint Soviet-American maneuvering likely will turn into conviction.
The mission of Shelepin, second secretary of the Soviet party, is not necessarily a peace move as such. It could be regarded as talking out insurance. Few doubt that Shelepin's task is to outbid the Red Chinese for the allegiance of North Viet Nam. But that could lead to more important developments by spring.
"Peace By April"
Shelepin's journey, viewed in the context of what has been going on in the Soviet bloc of Communist nations, lends support to a theory that the critical moment for peace prospects will come next April. The key could be the outcome of the contest between Peking and Moscow for North Viet Nam.

Virtually all Communist capitals in the Soviet camp have taken their lead from an editorial of a month ago in Pravda, the Communist party organ, deploring lack of Communist unity as a factor which permitted "the U.S. imperialists" to escalate the Viet Nam war and bomb the North.
The comment goes further, however. It indicates a belief that most of the world's parties are swinging away from Red China and into the Soviet camp, and hints that China is becoming isolated both on party and government levels.
Call For Realism
There is a chorus of comment calling for "realism," warning that the United States should not be underrated and that it is not a paper tiger, as the Chinese insist. The bloc is being told the Russians will not be provoked into endangering world peace.
The Kremlin has been busily cementing bloc relations in preparation for the 23rd Communist party congress opening March 29, which will be an opportunity for a form of world Communist meeting.
The violent Chinese attacks stinging in Moscow because the Peking assault threatens permanent division of the movement into two camps. By the time of the congress, Soviet missionary work may have whipped some of the maverick parties back into line.

197: the next step is to perfect the actual docking maneuver with an orbiting vehicle — the primary objectives of the next five Gemini missions, planned for 1966.
Problems Occurred
Borman noted that the flight of Gemini 7 did not go without problems. At one point, he said, the pilots were prepared to bring the craft back to earth one day shy of 14 days because of a fuel cell problem.
"Frankly, I did not feel the fuel cells (which supply electrical power) were going to last 24 more hours," he recalled.
Flight controllers determined that the problem apparently was in the water disposal system leading from the cells, and not in the cells themselves.
One recommendation Borman and Lovell made to space agency officials is to allow future astronauts to fly without burdensome spacesuits while on long-duration missions.
Lovell, the first U.S. astronaut to fly in space in his underwear, recalled that after removing his suit, "I felt sort of cold and naked in there, but about two hours later I became very comfortable."
"Nice And Comfortable"
"In future long missions that will probably be the technique used," added Borman, speaking of underwear flight. "We were nice and comfortable."
Both astronauts reported they suffered no disorientation at all. "There was no sensation of movement whatsoever," Lovell noted.
James E. Webb, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, awarded each of the four space-men NASA's Exceptional Service Medal.

Departing from NASA policy not to award the Distinguished Service Medal — the highest NASA award — to Gemini astronauts until the end of the Gemini program, Webb presented one to Schirra.
The citation said the award was for Schirra's "courage and judgment in the face of danger."
Schirra had the option on Dec. 12 to eject the Gemini 6 crew from their capsule on the launch pad at Cape Kennedy, Fla., when a malfunction halted the engines of the powerful Titan 2 rocket after ignition. He chose not to, and had he ejected damage could not have been repaired in time for rendezvous with Gemini 7.
Schirra, at 42 the oldest active U.S. astronaut, previously received the DSM for his nine-hour Mercury flight in 1962.
Donald K. Slayton, one of the seven original astronauts, also received the Distinguished Service Medal on Thursday even though he has never made a spaceflight. All seven Mercury astronauts now hold the award.
Slayton came close to a flight in 1961, but was replaced by Navy Cmdr. M. Scott Carpenter when doctors detected a slight heart condition. Still an astronaut, Slayton now directs flight crew training.

PRINCESS LEAVES $919,027
LONDON (AP) — Princess Royal Mary, sister of the late King George VI, left an estate of $28,224 pounds $919,027, her will showed Thursday. She died March 28 at 68.
The princess was married to Lord Strathmore and Kinghorne, a Scottish nobleman, in 1922. They had three children, including Prince Charles, who is now the Duke of Rothesay.

Foresee No Limit To Space Missions

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — Man's voyages through the void of space need no longer be burdened with fears that the strange weightless world might dangerously harm the human body, the Gemini 7 astronauts agreed Thursday.
They qualified their statements, though, by adding that spacecraft of the future should be designed for maximum crew comfort, and not "survival alone."
"There's no limit to how long man can exist in weightlessness," Navy Cmdr. James A. Lovell Jr. said at a news conference on the two-week Gemini 7 flight he took with Air Force Lt. Col. Frank Borman.
Borman, command pilot on the historic flight, confidently declared he felt astronauts could fly in space "a month, two months or whatever."
Make Details Public
The two astronauts joined with Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. and Air Force Maj. Thomas P. Stafford at the Manned Spacecraft Center to relate to the public details of their record-breaking missions that included the world's first true rendezvous in space.
For two hours, the four spacemen — together holders of virtually every manned spaceflight record — emphasized that man has proved he can live and work in space.
Schirra and Stafford, whose flight lasted only one day, dramatically described their Dec. 15 rendezvous with Gemini 7 — a mission Schirra called "almost classic...so pure."
They laid to rest the question of just how close the two spacecraft came to each other during that momentous meeting 185 miles above earth.
Within Foot
"We got within a foot but we had agreed before the flight that the spacecraft would not touch," said Schirra. "We had no hesitation in moving in and looking them (Gemini 7) over."
Previous estimates of the closest point ranged from one to 10 feet.
Obviously proud, Stafford, who was a space rookie before Gemini 6, said that when he first saw Gemini 7 glimmering in the distance it was "a great feeling to see our goal after a year's work."
And, they reached their goal. With a successful rendezvous, the United States took a giant stride forward in its effort to land two men on the moon by

Roodhouse Woman Dies In Minnesota

A 32-year old Roodhouse woman was killed Thursday morning when her auto was in a collision with a loaded semi-trailer truck about five miles north of the Iowa border near Spring Valley, Minn.

Dead was Mrs. Bessie J. Turner, 32, of Roodhouse, whose husband, James Turner is the manager of the Central Cash and Carry store on North Main street.

Mrs. Turner was returning to Roodhouse after taking her husband to the Mayo Clinic at Rochester. He had been home over the holidays.

Her husband is a patient at St. Mary's hospital in Rochester, which is affiliated with the clinic.

Occurs In Fog
The accident occurred 10 miles south of Spring Valley on U.S. 63, about five miles from the Iowa border. It happened on a curve of the wet, fog-shrouded highway.

Authorities said Harry Douglas, 51, of Marion, Iowa, was driving the truck, which belonged to Gateway Transportation company, of LaCrosse, Wis.

The big vehicle tipped over with its general cargo. Douglas was taken to a hospital for treatment of scalp lacerations. Mrs. Bessie Jane Turner was born in Scott county, January 9, 1933, a daughter of Richard and Bessie Jane Lawson Schofield.

She is survived by her mother, her husband, two children, Billy and Jerry, both at home; six brothers, Everett and Earl Schofield of Roodhouse; Irvin of Carrollton, Joseph of Winchester; Henry and Harvey, both of Murrayville.

The body is at the Mackey Funeral Home, Roodhouse. Funeral arrangements will not be made until late tonight.

Also honored was a local businessman, Frank A. Hopkins, who was first interviewed by Mr. Hively concerning the prospect of locating in Roodhouse. Mr. Hopkins, a member of the Roodhouse Chamber of Commerce, later became chairman of the industrial committee and worked with the company during the time before the factory was being established.

Coffee was served to honored guests and members of the Chamber of Commerce board of directors who were invited to participate in the ceremonies. Serving as hostess from the local office was Mrs. William Admire.

A TRADITION in the Jacksonville area between Christmas and New Year's holidays is the delivery by Boy Scouts of their annual calendar.

Calling in person, the Scouts visit the offices and other business establishments in the city, taking down the past year's calendar and hanging the coming year's.

The calendar, for several years, has featured a Norman Rockwell painting depicting a phase of scouting.

Ideal Baking Company, bakers of Lucky Boy bread, has been sole sponsors of the project from its inception. Since the bakery finances the project, the Scouts of the District receive a percentage of calendar cost for use in district scouting programs of Morgan, Cass, Scott and Greene counties.

Some of the Scouts taking part in the distribution are shown above, front row, from left: Clarence Brewster, executive vice president of Ideal Baking Co., Jack Wardell, Eddie German, Clark Wagner, Tim Watson, Steve Wilson and Dick Armstrong, Scout Executive.

How To Feel Like A Blue Bird Jan. 1st

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — A lot of people celebrate too much New Year's Eve — and are sorry the next morning.

"I know I made a fool of myself," each says to himself, "but what else could I do?" And then he will stick his head under a tap of cold water, eat some ice cream, drink a can of frigid tomato juice laced with butters, or just bury his head beneath the blanket and hope that time will take away his misery.

What else could he do but get a hangover on New Year's Eve? Why, the poor, poor pauper of opportunity! There are many things a man can do to constructively employ the final hours of 1965, things that will enable him to wake up in 1966 feeling like a bluebird.

He can, for example, twiddle his thumbs. Call up his friends at whatever party they went to and listen to their silly sounds.

Bawl out the cat. Listen to his wife. Tell himself how sensible he's being.

Walk around the block. Count the stars in a silent sky. Brood about how a hen lays an egg.

Go see what's in the refrigerator. Apologize to the cat. Try, for a change, to get his wife to listen to him.
